

MATHEMATISATION AND EULERIAN TREATMENT

Davide Rizza (University of East Anglia)

Some prominent philosophical accounts reduce the application of mathematics to a correspondence between structures. By contrast, I propose to look at it as a symbolic activity integrated within scientific and technological problem-solving. I call this activity mathematisation. The merits of the outlook I propose are discussed in general terms and in connection with some graph-theoretical examples.