Contents:
The aim of this Summer School is to offer a Law and Economics perspective on Corporate Governance. Lawyers, economists and social scientists interested in this approach can find intriguing cues for their research during this stimulating week.

Corporate Governance concerns the question of whose interests should be served by a company and how to ensure that managerial decisions do indeed further these interests. This School offers a general introduction to the concept of corporate governance and self-regulation and the legal regime governing companies, in the principal legal systems around the world. The School will address the ownership/control separation and the “agency cost” problems. Practical constraints on managerial conduct, the structure and function of the board of directors, shareholders and shareholder remedies will be explored as well. The course will also address the topics of the links between corporate governance and financial market regulation. International trends in corporate governance will also be explored with a particular focus on the duties of intermediaries. The aim of the school is to advance and contribute to policy, public discourse and research in the continuing debate about corporate governance in the Italy and in many other jurisdictions worldwide.
